PUBLIC INPUT SUMMARY REPORT

INTRODUCTION

Chesterfield County is updating their 2002 Parks and Recreation Master Plan. The Master Plan is assessed to determine if it is still relevant to the current population's needs, the County's growth patterns, and levels of service. The County bases this analysis on an inventory of existing programs and facilities, stakeholder and citizen surveys and community meetings, and a customized facility level of service analysis. Based on the results of this comprehensive analysis performed by county staff and independent consultants, the Master Plan is revised and updated.

Various Chesterfield County initiatives have been collecting data for the last several years from citizens and partner organizations on the perceived value and needs of the Parks and Recreation system. The County Parks and Recreation Department seeks to incorporate responses from all of these collections into the update of the Parks and Recreation Master Plan. This summary report is a meta-analysis of the results from the surveys, community workshops, and stakeholder meetings. This report identifies recurring themes in the surveys and citizen comments and ranks their priority rating using quantitative comparisons. These priorities will inform additional analysis focus areas during the Master Plan update process, as well as inform the final Master Plan.

SUMMARY OF DATA SETS

2014 PARKS AND RECREATION PUBLIC OPINION SURVEY

The Chesterfield County parks and Recreation Department, in conjunction with other departments and partners, began working on an update to the Parks and Recreation Master Plan in 2014. In order to better understand the citizens' perspectives on parks and recreational needs, county staff prepared and released an online survey that was active October — December 2014. Over 1,300 surveys were completed. The survey collected demographic information and gauged the respondents' interest in different recreational activities, frequency of use of specific program and facility types, and perceived need for additional programs and facilities. Some programs and facilities received high use ratings and high perceived need, like activities for families and greenways/ trails, while others had low use ratings and low perceived need, like competitive aquatics and cricket fields. Several programs and facilities had low use ratings, but a high perceived need, like teen and senior citizen programs and accessible playgrounds. These points of data discrepancy will need to be placed in context of other questionnaires and data sets to determine if a minority group is being appropriately served, resources are being equably distributed, or some other detail is missing. The survey also asked about communication preferences, customer service, and general satisfaction. The full survey summary is available at this website: http://www.chesterfield.gov/WorkArea/DownloadAsset.aspx?id=8590134543. The results from the survey summary were used in this report to evaluate the priorities of the community.

BLUEPRINT CHESTERFIELD

Blueprint Chesterfield is a community engagement initiative launched by the Board of Supervisors and the School Board. Its purpose is to provide citizens with opportunities to communicate their values, responses that will be used to shape the county's five-year budget plan. 6,200 people responded to the online survey and over 200 people attended 3 community workshops between June and August 2016. 2016 MASTER PLAN PUBLIC FORUM MEETINGS

As part of the process of updating the Parks and Recreation Master Plan, the Chesterfield County Parks and Recreation Department held a series of six community input workshops in June and July 2016 at locations across the county. The purpose of these workshops was to solicit input for the development of the master plan. The participants answered the following questions: what makes a great park system, what are the strengths of the current system (parks, school athletics, programs and

PARTNER GROUP INPUT MEETINGS

To ensure that the Master Plan revisions serve the needs of the Park and Recreation Department's formal partners (athletic groups, etc.), the department has held a series of stakeholder meetings in July and August 2016 to determine what changes the user groups would like made to the current system of parks, school athletics, programs, and services. The priorities identified from these meetings are weighted towards athletic fields and facilities, rather than to the parks system overall, so these results have not been included in the quantitative analysis of this report. However, many of the priorities identified by the partner groups are also identified by the more comprehensive surveys. Where this happens, additional weight should be given to this priority, since it has been identified in several different surveys.

COMPARATIVE ANALYSIS

METHODOLOGY

LPDA identified the highest rated priorities in park and recreation facilities, programs, and organizational structure/ management as identified by the public in the 2014 Public Opinion Survey, Blueprint Chesterfield, and the Master Plan Public Forum Meetings. The priorities are listed on a chart, then cross referenced to the other surveys to determine if it was identified as a priority by them as well. Themes identified as priorities receive a 1, themes identified but not as a priority receive a 0, and if a theme was not discussed in a report, then no score was given. The number of times a priority was identified by a report was totaled, with 3 being the highest possible score. Comparing the scores allows us to identify priority themes that are common throughout the surveyed citizen groups.

RESULTS

Several themes were identified in all three surveys as priorities: bikeways/trail, water access, need for a community/senior citizen center, and additional programs. Themes identified as priorities in two of the surveys are: connectivity, additional parks/acquiring land, a pool or water park, park maintenance, additional events, and good customer service. Priorities identified in just one survey are: additional rectangular fields, playgrounds, bathrooms, park amenities, safety, additional advertising, and scheduling of school fields. It is important to note that themes identified as a priority in just one survey have still been identified as a priority, and the parks and recreation department will need to monitor or address this need in the future.

PRIORITIES IDENTIFIED IN ALL THREE SURVEYS

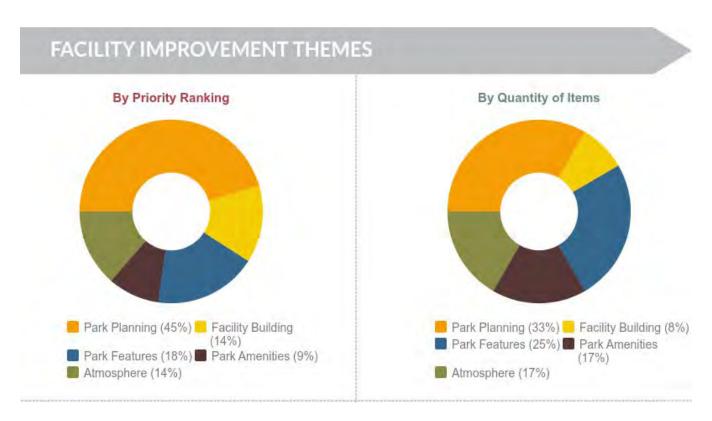

PRIORITIZATION THEMES

The identified priorities for the parks and recreation department can be clustered into three categories: park facilities, programs, and department management.

FACILITY PRIORITIES

The facilities identified as a priority within each of the three public survey are: bikeways/trails, water access, and a community/senior center. The facilities identified as a priority by two surveys are connectivity, additional parks/acquire land, a pool/ water park, and park maintenance. The facilities people identified as important on the surveys form themed clusters. People value park planning (bikeways/trails, connectivity, water access, additional parks/acquiring land), a type of facility (community/senior center), park features (rectangular fields, playgrounds, and pools/water parks), park amenities (bathrooms, and other amenities like picnic tables, trash cans, etc.), and the park's atmosphere (maintenance and feeling of safety). Of these clusters, all of the park planning items and facility types appear as priorities in two or more surveys. Therefore, it is especially important that the Parks and Recreation Master Plan address park planning and construction of facilities.

Operational Management Priorities

Customer service was listed as a priority in two of the community surveys and advertising and school field scheduling were listed as priorities in one of the three surveys. As a category, the management of the Parks and Recreation department had the lowest immediacy rating, with no priorities ranking in all three surveys.

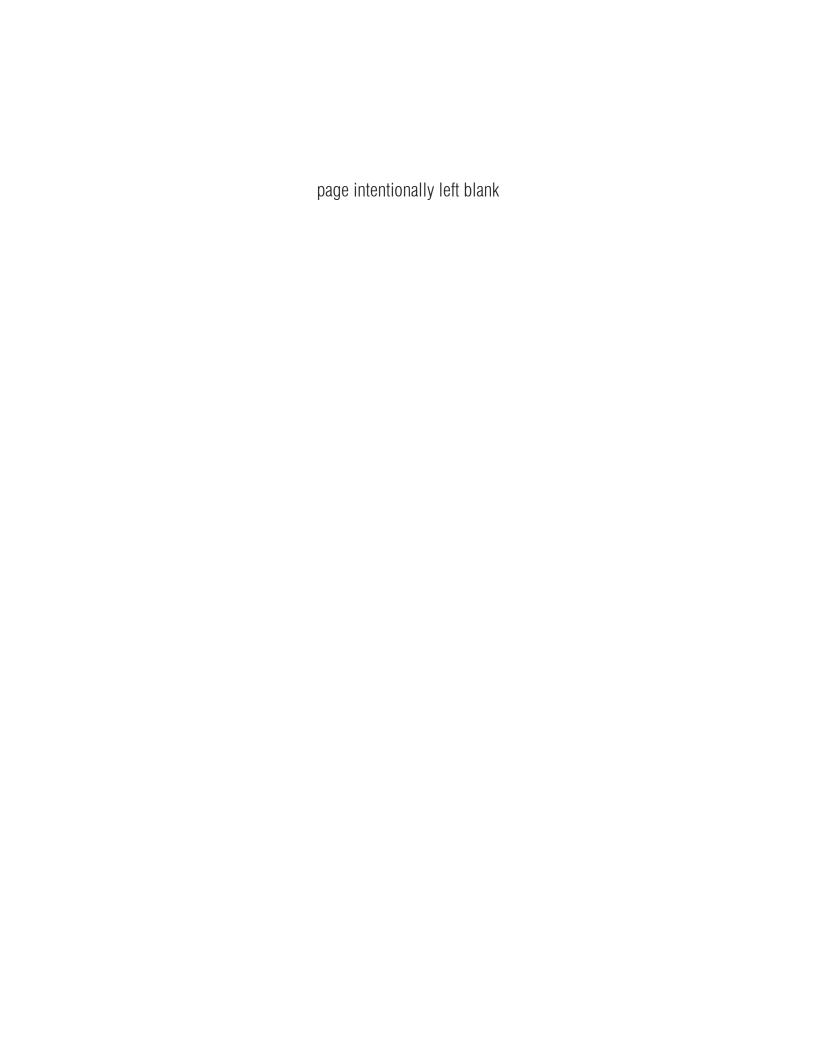

PROGRAM PRIORITIES

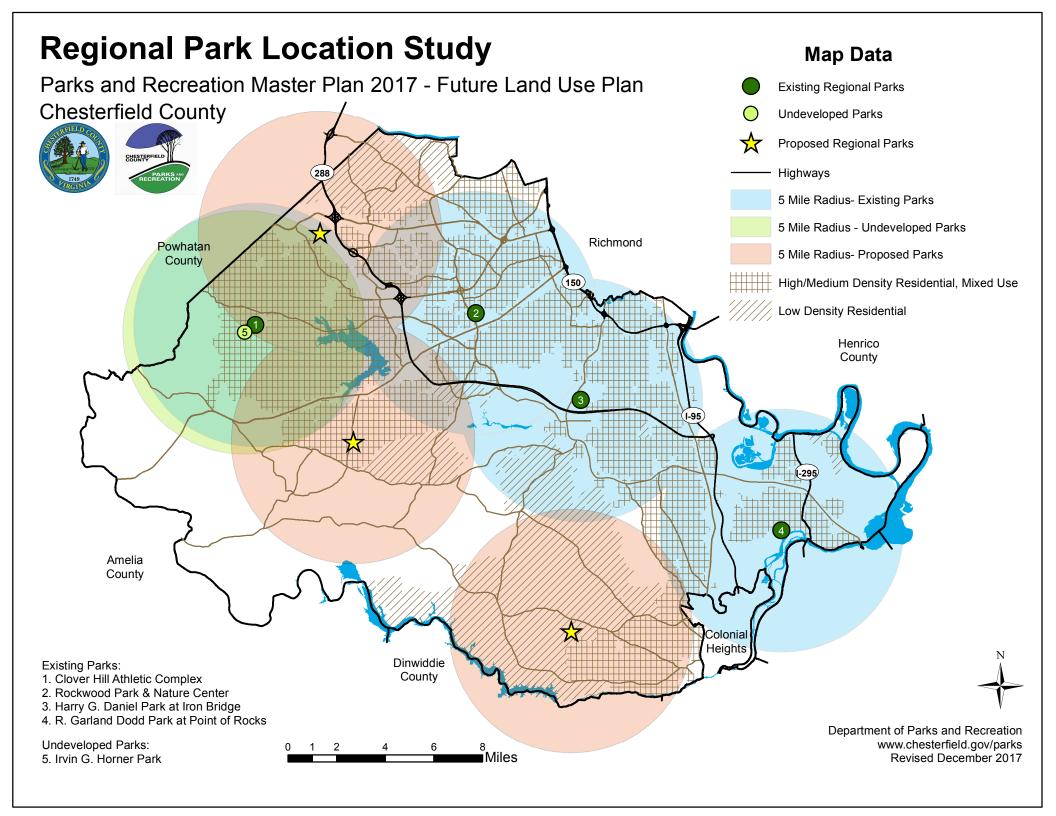

Two of the priorities identified by the surveys fall under the theme of programs: special events and programs. Both of these were identified as priorities by two or more surveys, and programs was identified as a priority in all three surveys. With the heading of "programs" there are many sub-categories that were identified or mentioned in the three surveys, for example, teen programs, senior programs, and life skill classes. Based on the high priority ranking, the support and possible expansion of programs will need to be addressed in the Master Plan revisions, with additional attention paid to the type, availability, and location of programs. Conducting a program lifecycle analysis and cost recovery analysis will provide valuable information for crafting the master plan.

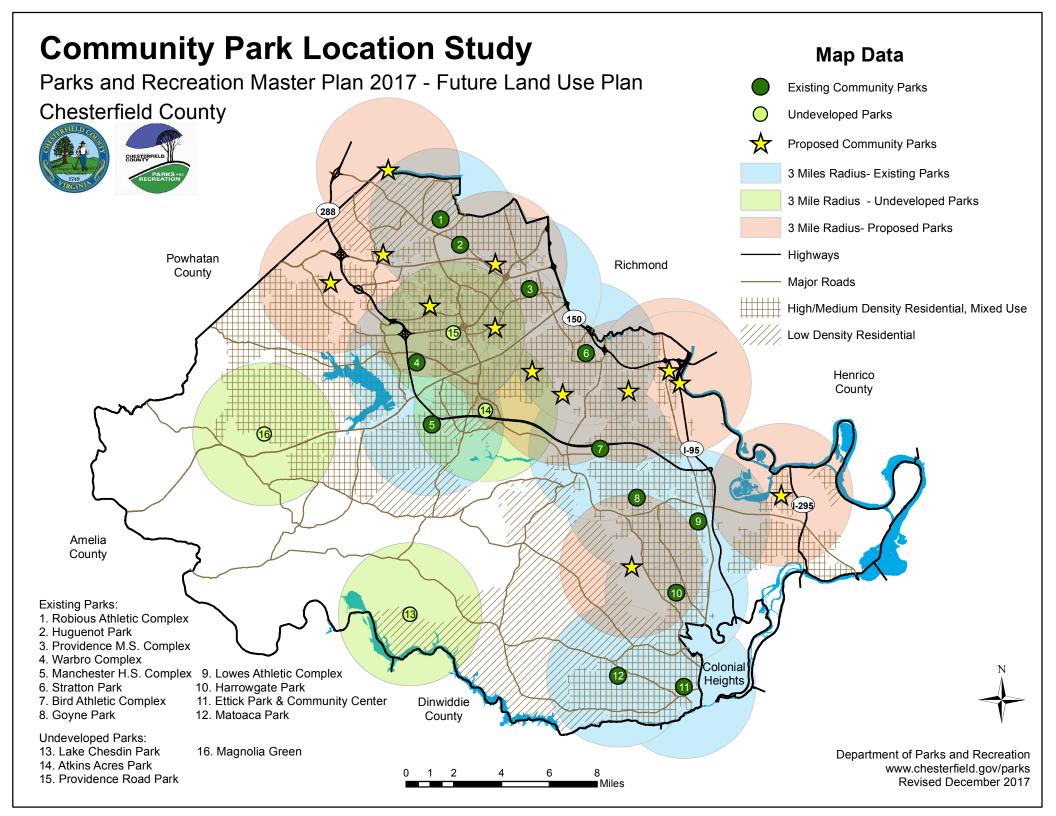

STRENGTHS OF PARKS TO CONTINUE

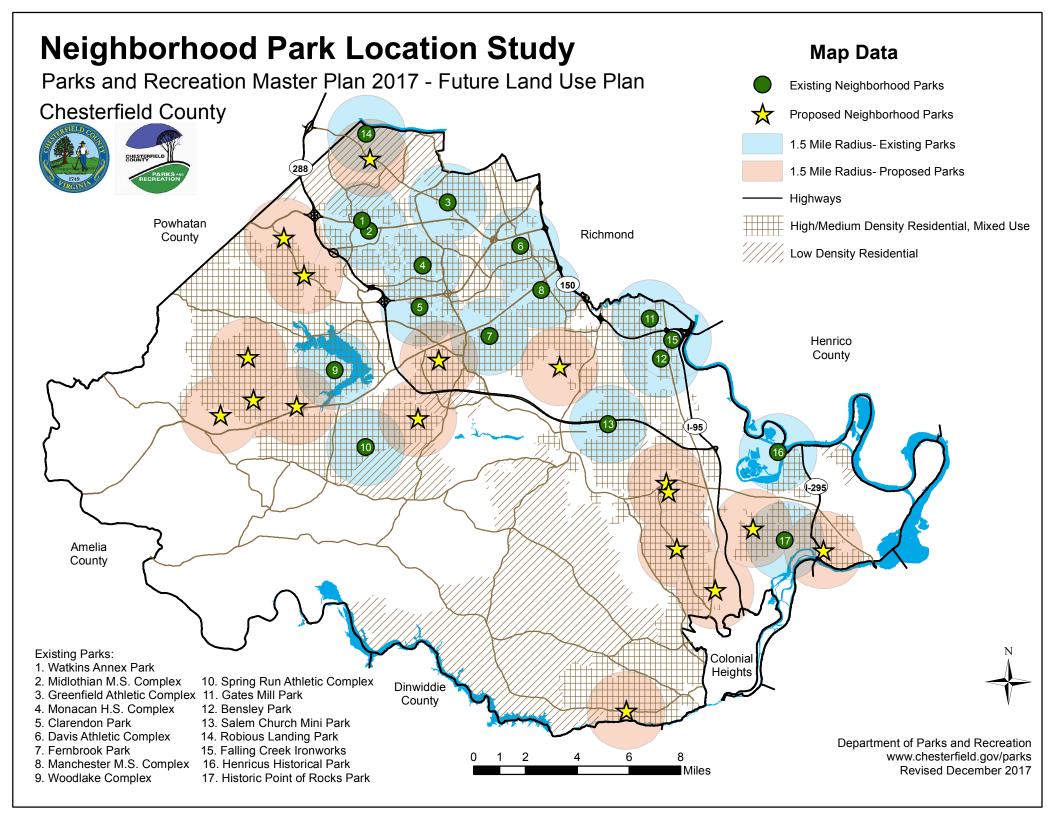

It should be noted that several of the points identified as priorities also have high public satisfaction values. Being listed as a top priority does not mean a subject area is failing, just that people value it. The public lists several of the priorities as successes by the department. It is important then that the park system continue their high quality of service in these areas, and investigate if there are additional ways to meet the public's need. For example, people surveyed said that they like the programs offered and that they want additional programs. The parks department can determine if programs are equally distributed throughout the county, minority groups like teens or seniors that need additional programs, or if program frequency should be increased. The following are public priorities that citizens have identified as currently being performed very highly: park maintenance, customer service, programs, and wildlife and natural areas
